

The Guidelines

If you're a UTS student, alumni, or staff member we would love for you to share your experience! Read on for our simple set of contribution guidelines:

1

This opportunity is only open to UTS students, alumni, and staff.

2

We invite genuine content that informs, assists, or entertains students. Personal stories, professional advice and interesting anecdotes are all great starting points. As such, any sales-related content (including ad copy promoting an event or service) will not be suitable for this platform.

3

All written content submitted must be the work of the individual submitting it.

4

Submissions should be between 400-1000 words in length, as a general rule.

5

Do not criticise or slander a company, organisation, employer, product, or individual.

6

Do not provide false or misleading information.

7

Do not write about conduct that is unprofessional, inappropriate, or irrelevant.

8

You must provide an author bio (2-5 sentences) and a professional, high quality photo of yourself to accompany your article. If you are (or were) a UTS student, please provide the degree you are/were studying.

9

Each submission will be subject to editorial overview, and will not be published until both parties are satisfied.

10

Upon submitting an article, there is no guarantee that it will be posted to the blog.

11

Submissions should be uploaded as an editable Microsoft Word document.

12

Any images, videos, gifs, or external sources cited within your blog post need to be submitted alongside their source URL.

13

Submissions must be sent in using an email address you can be contacted through, throughout the editorial process. If unsure, please provide your favoured email address in your submission email.
